A Love-Sick Muezzin.

A dispatch from Chicago says: Pretty Blanche Wilson, of Columbus, O., has been the stenographer and amanuensis of Manager Smythe of the Sudanese village in the street in Cairo of Midway Plaisance. She came to town a month ago, and the room she fitted up soon became a postoffice at which the dervishes, wrestlers, necromancers and dancers of the street called for their letters. Among her visitors was a tall bearded fellow with keen eyes. He was the muezzin of the village. Four times a day he climbed to the top of the great white minaret and called the faithful to prayer in the mosque.

The muezzin tried to teach his friend the strange language of his country. His efforts amused if they did not encourage his visits. Manager Pangelio, who knows something about the flirtations of Cairo, warned Miss Wilson to have nothing to do with the muezzin. But the girl seemed to be entertained if not hypnotized by the palaver of the fellow. Then Manager Smythe told Miss Wilson that she must stop what appeared to him to be a dangerous flirtation. Miss Wilson laughed and declared that she was not afraid. Manager Pangelio threatened to send Miss Wilson back to Columbus. So did Manager Smythe, who was quick to see that the girl was getting into the power of the priest.

The muezzin climbed up the minaret on Friday night and cried aloud to the Mohammedans to enter the mosque for prayer. He held two oranges in his hand when he emerged from the white building. A love message, it is supposed, was engraved upon the surface of each orange. The peels had been carved into hieroglyphs, which, it is to be presumed, Miss Wilson could not read. She received the oranges, placed them on her desk, and then laughed as Sheikh Ali, the muezzin, shuffled out of the office.

Manager Smythe did not want to see any more. He told Miss Wilson that she must go back to Columbus at once, as he had positive proof that the priest had not only professed his love for the girl, but had come so far as to declare that he would renounce Mohammedanism and become a Christian, so that their marriage could not be stopped by religious barriers.

It was 7 o'clock on Friday night when Manager Smythe received a message that Miss Wilson was dead in his office. He found the young woman lying white and cold beside her typewriting machine. The two carved oranges lay at her side. The doctor said the girl was suffering from heart failure. All night long the physicians worked over the girl, but it was not until 9 o'clock Saturday morning that she was revived to consciousness. For ten hours she lay like one dead. The muezzin could not be driven to bed. The guard whacked him, but the loveliest Oriental refused to leave the window of his sweetheart. When he learned that the girl was to be buried away, he gathered a guard of a half dozen Arabs and sought to intercept the carriage.

Manager Smythe bundled the girl out of a side gate and gave instructions to drive with haste to Englewood, where the still half-conscious girl was placed in a car and sent to Columbus. Miss Wilson is scarcely 20 years old. Two years ago Editor W. S. Elliott of the Sunday Capital, of Columbus, was involved in a street fight with A. C. Osborne, a reporter on a local paper. While the fighting was in progress, Elliott seized Miss Wilson and using her as a shield, sent the fatal bullets into his antagonist. Elliott and his brother Pat (the latter having taken a hand in the fight) were tried for murder. The editor was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, and his brother for twenty years.

UNIVERSAL FASHION COMPANY'S PERFECT FITTING PATTERNS excel all others.

Because they are perfect in fit, each part being cut with exactitude.

Because material is saved by their use.

Because the descriptions are short, concise and yet embrace every detail, giving all necessary instructions how to put the model together.

Because they come in all necessary sizes.

Because they are so cut that the measure need only be taken in the ordinary manner, and no allowance or deduction is required as is the case with other patterns.

Because no matter how intricate the design, the pattern is so cut, notched and arranged that a child can put it together without difficulty.

Because when the garment is made like the pattern, it is sure to look like the illustration by which it was selected.

Because they are put in envelopes bearing the description in three languages.

Because they are the lowest in price.

Because they are absolutely perfect in fit, and save time, labor, material, money and patience.

Call for complete catalogue. Patterns sent to any address, postpaid, on receipt of the price.
